What counts as personal use

- Meals for the cardholder alone without business purpose
- Personal subscriptions or memberships
- Personal travel

- Retail purchases unrelated to business
- Cash advances, except through the authorized travel advance process

Personal charges that appear on the statement must be reported to Treasury within 5 business days of the charge appearing. The cardholder repays ABC CORP by payroll deduction or direct payment within 14 days. Repeated personal charges result in card suspension.

Disputes

Step 1 — Identify the issue. Review the statement detail. Confirm the charge is not a legitimate business transaction you or an authorized delegate made.

Step 2 — Contact the merchant first. Many issues resolve directly. Keep a record of the contact.

Step 3 — Dispute with the card issuer. The issuer's dispute process is available through the issuer portal. Disputes must be filed within 60 days of the statement date.

Step 4 — Notify Treasury. Provide the dispute confirmation number and a brief summary.

Step 5 — Monitor. Disputes resolve in 30–90 days depending on complexity. Treasury follows up with the issuer if the dispute exceeds 90 days.

Fraudulent charges

If you suspect fraudulent charges:

1. Call the issuer immediately to freeze the card.
2. Notify Treasury the same day.
3. Notify Information Security if you suspect the card details were obtained through a phishing attempt or other security incident.

Treasury replaces the card and works with the issuer on chargebacks. The cardholder is not responsible for fraudulent charges provided they are reported promptly.

Lost or stolen card

Report to the issuer and Treasury immediately. The issuer issues a replacement within 3–5 business days. Loss reporting is not disciplinary; failing to report is.

Card expiry and renewal

Cards are reissued automatically before expiry. Confirm your mailing address is current. Cards delivered to the wrong address must be reported to Treasury within 3 business days.
