1. Purpose

This document sets out how ABC CORP records are maintained, how employment verification requests are handled, and how employees request changes to their record — name, address, marital status, emergency contact, and other attributes.

It is issued as a bulletin because it changes several previously separate practices. Effective immediately, all record changes go through the HRIS self-service workflow, and HR Operations no longer accepts record change requests by email.

2. Why this is changing

Until this change, employees could request record changes through three channels: the HRIS, email to HR Operations, and the Service Desk. This created three problems. First, changes requested through email sometimes lacked the documentation required to support them. Second, changes made through the Service Desk were logged as tickets but not always reflected in the HRIS. Third, the absence of a single intake channel made it difficult to audit who requested what change and when.

Consolidating to the HRIS self-service workflow fixes all three. Every change is logged, every change requires the appropriate documentation, and every change flows into the downstream systems — payroll, benefits, and directory — through the same integration.

3. Effective date and transition

This change is effective immediately. Record change requests received by email or through the Service Desk after this bulletin's date will be redirected to the HRIS self-service workflow. Requests already in flight before this date will be completed through their existing channel and will not need to be resubmitted.

4. What counts as a record change

The following changes go through the HRIS self-service workflow:

- Legal name change
- Preferred name or display name change
- Address and phone number
- Emergency contact
- Marital status
- Educational credentials
- Direct deposit information
- Tax withholding forms
- Beneficiary designations (via plan administrator portal — see HR-003)

The following do NOT go through self-service and require HR Operations involvement:

- Job title or job code changes (manager-initiated)
- Compensation changes (manager and compensation team-initiated)
- Cost center changes (Finance-initiated)
- Employment status changes such as full-time to part-time (HR Operations-initiated)
- Department transfers (manager and HR Operations-initiated)

5. Documentation requirements

Change	Required documentation
Legal name change	Government-issued ID or court order
Address change	None for self-service; address verification may be requested
Marital status change	Marriage certificate or divorce decree
Educational credentials	Transcript or diploma
Direct deposit	Voided check or bank letter

Documentation is uploaded to the HRIS workflow. HR Operations reviews within three business days. Changes are reflected in the HRIS and downstream systems within two business days of approval.

6. Employment verification

Verification for employees — current and former employees may request a verification of employment letter through the HRIS. Letters are issued within two business days and are signed by HR Operations.

Verification for third parties — employment verifications from lenders, landlords, and background check firms go through the HRIS verification portal. ABC CORP uses a third-party verification service. HR Operations does not respond to verification requests sent by email unless the request comes through the portal.

Verification for immigration — immigration-related verifications are handled by HR Operations and Legal. Employees needing immigration support should contact HR Operations directly.

7. Access to personnel files

Employees may request a copy of their personnel file once per calendar year at no charge. Additional copies may incur an administrative fee. Requests are made through HR Operations and fulfilled within ten business days.

Managers may access limited personnel data for their direct reports through the HRIS manager view. Managers do not have access to medical information, benefits elections, or disciplinary records outside the standard HRIS manager view.

8. Data accuracy

Employees are responsible for keeping their record current, particularly their address, phone number, and emergency contact. Stale emergency contact information is a safety issue. HR Operations audits emergency contact information annually.

Inaccurate records that affect pay, benefits, or tax should be corrected immediately. Corrections that affect prior periods may require payroll adjustment (see HR-004).

9. What employees should expect

- Changes submitted through self-service are acknowledged immediately
- HR Operations review takes up to three business days where documentation is required
- Downstream systems reflect changes within two business days of approval
- Employees are notified by email when their change is processed

10. Questions

Questions about this bulletin should be directed to HR Operations. Questions about a specific record change should be raised within the HRIS case rather than by email so the case record stays complete.
